Women apparently want to be sexy this Halloween.

Most of the people who buy costumes at Thoughts 'N' Things are young adults, said manager Bonnie Morketter as she ducked through the Halloween costumes crowding her Upland shop.

"Last year, Elvira was the big thing," Morketter said. "She's not that hot this year, but the same sexy idea is."

Sexy has long been a key word at The Theater Company. They rent theater costumes, most in adult sizes.

Employee Tyler Learned said French maid costumes, can-can girls, and Southern Belles are usually "the top three" for women, and "wenches have been a big seller this year" also, said fellow employee Barbara Dvoretz.

Thoughts 'N' Things, on Mountain Avenue north of 16th Street, is a Hallmark store, but "you wouldn't know it at Halloween," Morketter said. "It gets awful boring just being a Hallmark store."

So at Halloween, they clear a couple of aisles and fill them with costume accessories like hats, fake feet and swords. Costumes crowd the ceiling and hang into the aisles.

"It gets real congested, but that's part of the fun," Morketter said.

She said she doesn't rent the costumes; she only sells them. "I found that so many costumes sell for what they're renting for," she said.

The costumes are not the paper or paper-thin cloth made for children. They are sturdy and can be used more than one night of the year.

People often buy a basic costume one year, then add to it over the years, she said. That way, they "really create a real costume."

Sales are better than usual this year, she said, adding, "Halloween is always good — people love halloween. They get to party, to pretend — it's a good excuse to be crazy."

"They say, 'Oh, well, it's Halloween,'" she said.

"With your imagination and our accessories, you can be almost anything you want," Morketter said. Kit costumes of all kinds start at $15, she said, but "you have to wear them over something, like a leotard. Otherwise you're half-naked."

More elaborate costumes are about $10 more.

Morketter said people don't have to come in knowing exactly what they want.

"The only thing we ask is that they decide if they want to be pretty, ugly or funny, and we help them from that point. We really have fun when someone says they want to be ugly."

They have professional make-up, and will give people instructions and tips on how to apply and — just as important — how to take it off.

"There's nothing sadder than a Dracula after Halloween, and we get that," she said.

With the multitude of choices, what's Morketter going to be this Halloween? She said she and her husband are planning on dressing up as "space people," complete with silver make-up.

The selection of costumes at The Theater Company, 633 N. Benson Ave., Upland, was incredible.

Before people started renting for Halloween about a month ago, at least 3,000 costumes hung on rack after rack in the cavernous warehouse.

Employees have compiled a list of 200 different types of costumes available, but "some things are starting to run low," Learned said.

Many specific sizes — both the popular and the hard-to-get — are gone, Dvoretz said. People who come in early in the season get the selection and, if they are early enough, can have the costumes altered.

"If they come in the week before, we don't have their size," she said.

Not to despair. "The top rows are still full. We have lots of kilts."

"Which is a shame, because they're probably one of our most authentic costumes," Learned said.

Other costumes run from those used in local productions — like King Arthur and Guinevere from Camelot — to the truly bizarre, like Learned's Urban Warrior and Shogun Assassin creations.

People are usually shocked at the selection. "They ... walk around and ask if they can come back later. They don't expect to see that much," Learned said.

"It's like a fantasy to come in here and try things on," Dvoretz said. "They can't believe you let them come in here and play in your closet."

The people who work at The Theater Company "care about what you put on. We work with you with hats, gloves, things like that," she said.

Dvoretz said they really enjoy it when a customer says, "Show me something strange."

A friend of one of the employees came in one day and tried on a musketeer costume. Just fooling around, Dvoretz said, they put a chipmunk head over it.

"He didn't have a party to go to, but liked the costume so much he rented it and then found a party to go to," she said.

Some male customers pose more of a problem, but the employees have learned how to handle it. "Most guys are being dragged here by their girlfriend," she said.

"We put them in a riverboat gambler or a pirate, where they can run around and be nuts."

Most costumes rent for $25 to $40, for three days, Learned said. This year's rentals have been about the same as they have been in past years.

And, as in past years, the employees are starting to get burned out. "After helping 1,600 people in and out of costumes, you get tired," Learned said.

But they still have pride in their work. "We make sure everyone looks good when they leave here. And some look fantastic," Learned said. □

Skiing's no vacation for this gal

By Tony Saavedra

Many people water ski during their vacations. Twelve-year-old Kelly Wilcoxson of Upland is taking a vacation from her skiing.

From March through September, Wilcoxson competes in local and national water ski races, jetting around three one-mile laps at speeds up to 55 mph.

She recently placed fifth in the 10- to 12-year-old female division of the 13th National Water Ski Championships in Long Beach. Wilcoxson also took fourth place in the nationals two years ago.

Almost every weekend, she practices with her father, Ken, the 1983 senior mens national waterski champion.

Together they push to go just a little faster and a little farther.

The sessions last all day and are sometimes supplemented during the week with a brisk run up and down the bleachers at Mount San Antonio College stadium.

"I really don't play ski," says Wilcoxson, a student at Vernon Junior High School.

The Wilcoxsons, from 65-year-old Grandma June to young Kelly, take their skiing seriously.

The family legacy of sorts began on a Labor Day weekend five years ago at the Marine Stadium in Long Beach.

Father Ken, now divorced from Kelly's mother, spent the day watching the boat races and decided to give it a try. From there he went into competitive skiing.

Ken now competes for time and for distance. If there was an award for skiing under water he would probably go for that too.

His enthusiasm infected his daughter, who was then 7 years old. Kelly began competing a year later, much to the joy of her father.

"This is a good competition for kids," says Ken. "It gives them a goal to work for."

Kelly will soon be competing in the 13- to 15-year-old category, where her helmet, gloves and padded wetsuit will be all the more welcome.

Skiers in that division usually reach speeds of more than 80 mph.

"It's real dangerous," says Ken. "Sometimes you'll be charging into a turn and there will be another boat 2 feet to your left."

While Kelly has come a long way since her days as a beginner, she wants to go even farther — around 75 miles to be exact.

Again like her father, she hopes to become a marathon racer, skimming through courses of 25, 35, 50 and 75 miles.

Judging from her high ambitions, it seems that nothing makes Kelly nervous. Except maybe posing for a newspaper photograph ... at 5:30 in the evening ... in her bathing suit. □

Kitchen help provided by the area's best cooks

"Recipes from the Kitchens of Las Guías," the new cookbook prepared by the docents of the Casa de Rancho Cucamonga, will be on sale at the house starting Saturday, Oct. 29, according to Julie Hillman and Kathy Hall, cookbook committee chairwoman.

Not only does this cookbook contain recipes for dishes served at the annual gourmet dinners and spring brunches, which have previously been kept secret, but historic recipes from the 1800s and early 1900s will be featured.

In addition to the traditional Mexican, southern and American Indian recipes is the traditional recipe for Russian Easter bread baked by the Cherbak family. The Cherbaks were one of four families who emigrated to Rancho Cucamonga in the 1800s. Although the families were close, there was quite a rivalry among the women for their Easter bread. The families would get together each year and sample their breads and decide who had baked the best one.

Proceeds from the sale of these books will go to the restoration of the old kitchen at the Casa, also known as the Rains House, according to Maxine Strane, curator.

The Casa de Rancho Cucamonga is located at 7869 Vineyard Ave., Rancho Cucamonga.

Her work keeps others at their play

Kathy Frey
Recreation Supervisor Karen Matcham brings a variety of experience to her job at Neighborhood Center.

By Matt Coker

Karen Matcham has been at Rancho Cucamonga Neighborhood Center almost as long as the center has been at its Arrow Route site.

Now 33, the recreation supervisor joined the center staff a year after the 4½-year-old building opened. Originally built as a county facility with federal grant funds, the center became part of Rancho Cucamonga when the city incorporated.

Matcham brought plenty of experience with her to the post, having served in recreation departments in Pasadena, Fontana, Riverside and Bloomington.

"I started at 16," she said. "When I went to college, I still worked my way up to supervisor."

Her first full-time recreation job was with Ontario at age 21, where she spent 3½ years.

Matcham said her experience in other city recreation programs — a quality she shares with her boss, Bill Holley, the city's community services director — helps determine a direction for recreation activities in Rancho Cucamonga.

"As the city has been growing, we've started our own policies, having seen how they run in other cities," she said. "That experience and knowing the resources of other cities applied to a new city in its young stages has been really exciting."

Matcham said her job involves public relations, organization, business administration and knowledge of many sports.

"You mainly need someone who can do programming and they need to get along with people," she said. "Recreation and social services all intertwine with one another. Most of it you learn from experience, but it also depends on what type of person you are."

"It is an extremely difficult job, which she does with very professional results," Holley said.

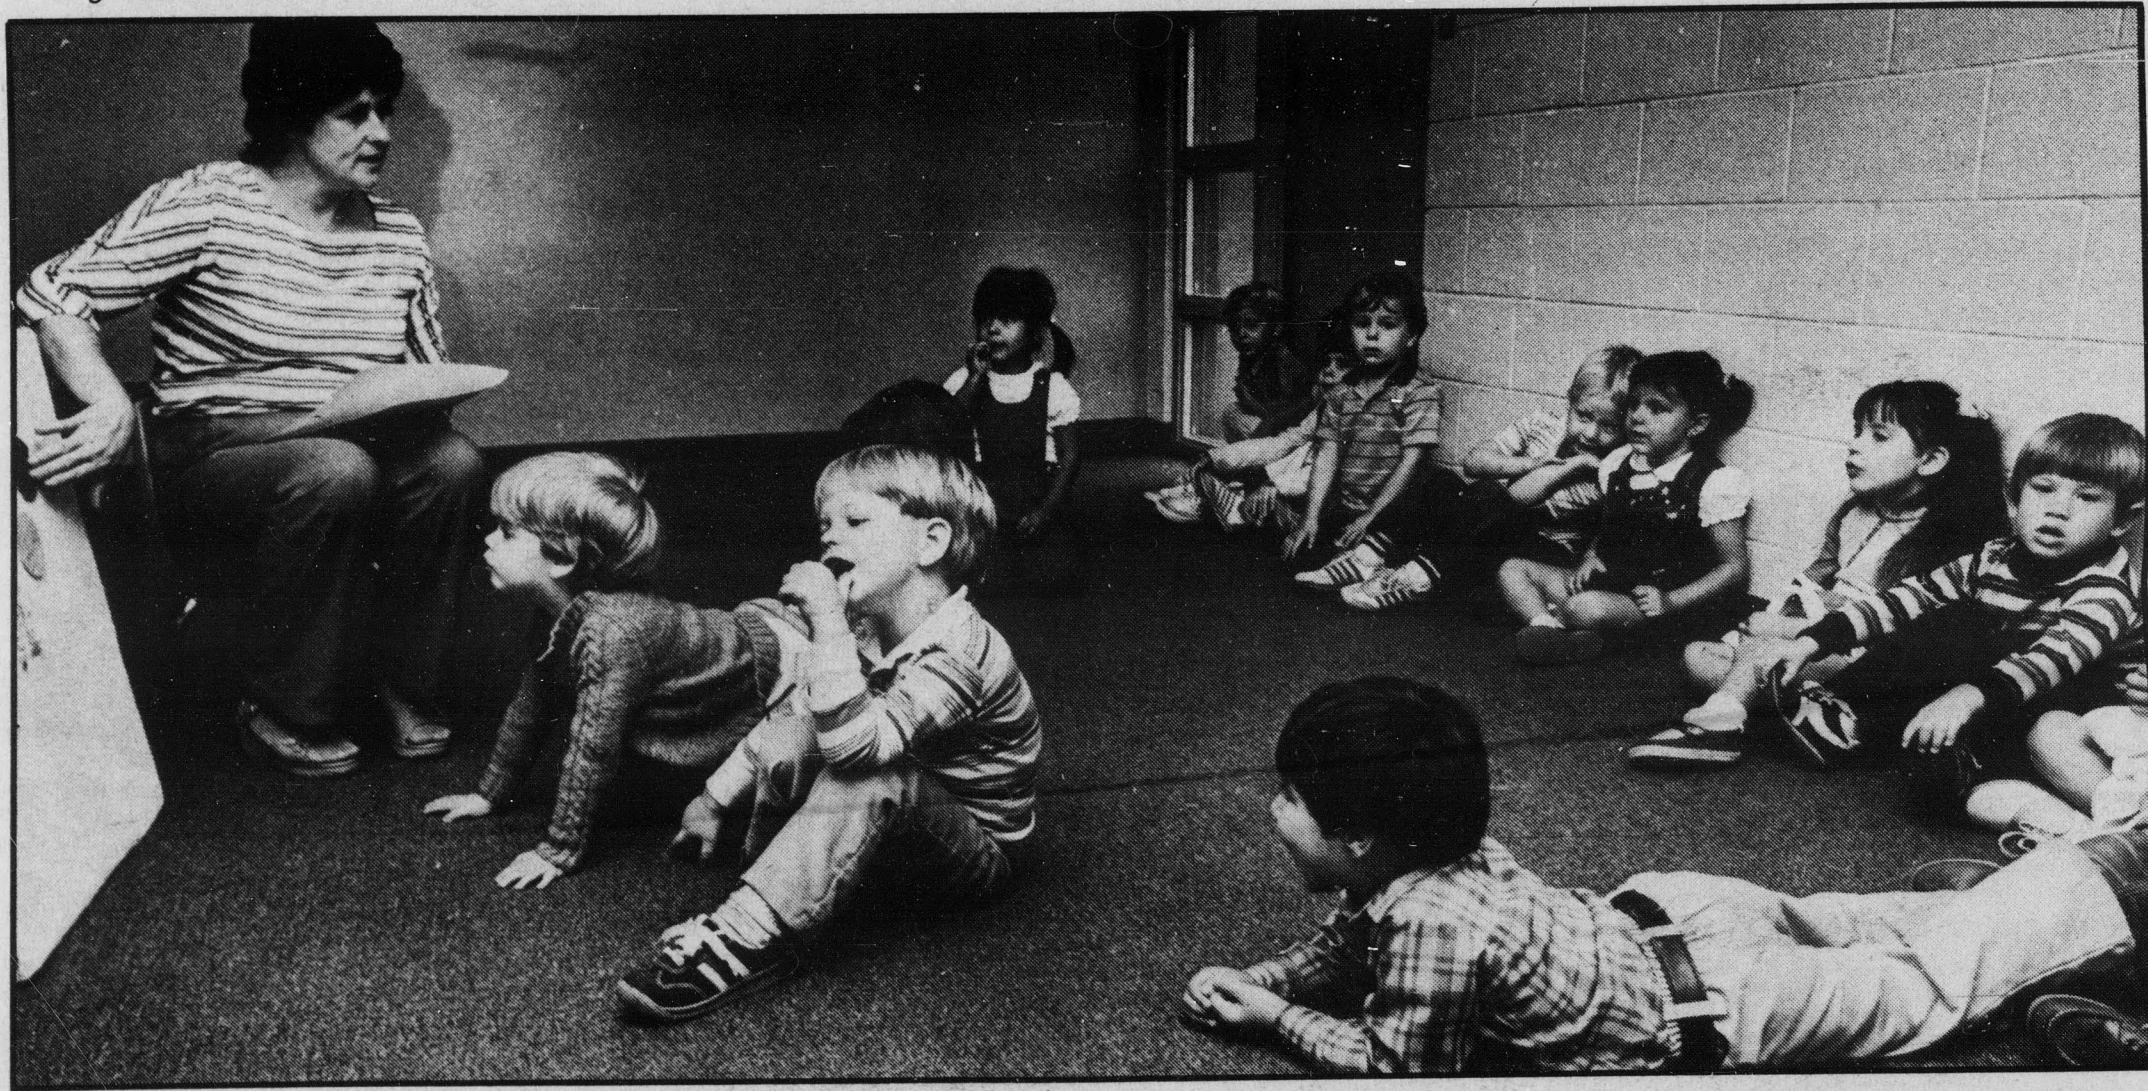

"I like it here because I am not doing strictly recreation," Matcham said. "I love recreation, but if that was all I did I wouldn't like it because I would not be branching out enough."

Besides recreation, she also immerses herself in social services, coordinating senior activities, non-profit organization meetings, government programs and the scheduling of all sport field uses throughout the city.

A youth sports council, made up of all the city leagues, meets four to six times a year to resolve scheduling conflicts. Matcham oversees that group.

"The school districts did the organizing before, but they decided to let the city handle it because it is really a headache," she said. "We really don't

Stevens sings a song unto the Lord

By Terri Tirella

For 16 years, Patti Stevens sang for audiences at night clubs, Broadway shows and operas. She now sings for her Lord.

"For 16 years I supported my children, putting them through school and doing a lot of things for them before I remarried," Stevens said.

She said becoming a gospel singer was "like paying the Lord back for all the joy, happiness and security my voice had given me."

Stevens said she has sung for presidents, kings and queens and heads of states. "I did a lot of world traveling — England, Ireland, Austria, and across the United States. I can't remember all the places I have sung."

"God was good to me even though I wasn't living a Christian life. Sometimes it's difficult to live a Christian life out in the world and everything that is bad is in show business," she said.

Being brought up attending church regularly gave Stevens a knowledge of what was right and wrong. "It helped me. I could have gotten into drugs, alcohol, or been promiscuous, but I was not like that."

"My children have fared well by a talent God, in my belief, gave me. We were lucky," she said. Her children traveled with her on singing tours.

Stevens lost her first husband to cancer 11 years ago. She has since remarried and lives in Alta Loma.

But even after she remarried, something was missing. "My life was empty. My daughter volunteered me to sing at the Christian school where she was enrolled. That's when I became a Christian."

Since becoming a Christian, Stevens has sung at Pomona Four-Square Church, Liberty Christian Center, and the Desert Gospel Sing, where all gospel singers put together an annual Labor Day concert.

Locally she has sung at Rancho Christian Academy at the First Baptist Church. She has sung for Women Aglow and Christian Business Women in Upland.

Stevens said she was blessed with her voice and had lessons for only six months. "I had all the goodies in life as a child. I had piano lessons, Marimba, dance, acrobatics and elocution."

Stevens was adopted. "People who adopt children can do so much more. I'm a graduate of Maglen Kiddies (School) where Shirley Temple, Jane Withers and all the kid stars went. You learned how to walk, talk and dance."

Stevens won a Hollywood Bowl talent contest when she was a child. She and her mother moved to Ontario after her father died. Stevens played the glockenspiel in the Chaffey High School Band.

Before going into show business, Stevens graduated and worked as a nurse. "I could make twice as much a day when I was singing than when I did nursing."

Stevens has done a lot of acting, including commercials in Ireland, "but as far as speaking ad lib in public, pass me by." Other entertainment ventures included releasing five albums.

"Everybody needs a bit of security — I wanted a dress shop," she said. So she and her husband decided to open "Patti O'Shay's," a dress shop for large women, in Alta Loma.

The day after she and her husband signed the building lease, her husband suffered a stroke, leaving Stevens to open the store.

She said she needs to make a comfortable living in her store so she doesn't have to dip into savings. "I still have a 16-year-old daughter to raise. Savings won't go that far."

"I always loved clothes. I was told by an instruction that when entertaining my attire must be better than anyone in the audience's. I went to great pains to have my gowns made very elegantly," she said.

She said bigger girls don't have to look sloppy, or feel ugly; they can be beautiful if they dress properly.

"All it takes is someone going out finding the clothes, and placing and pricing them where women can buy them," she said.

The Alta Loma resident has five children, four boys and a girl and two grandsons. "My children are delights. None of them chose show business as a career, although my 3-year-old grandson carries a fine tune and sure is a ham," she said. □

There are several words which describe the friends

- Family-oriented: We believe that God has ordained the family to be the real "school" for spiritual learning. It is our aim to provide both quality educational opportunities at church and to train you to be spiritual leaders in your home.
- Bible-Based: There is no other handbook which teaches us how to live a life that is pleasing to God and self other than the Bible. We take the Bible literally and apply its truths to our lives as best as we can. That is what we believe and how we teach.
- Christ-centered: Jesus Christ is the head of the Church of which we are a part. To us, Christ-centered means that we take His claims seriously and live according to them.
- Accepting: Jesus set no entry requirements on fellowship when He walked on this earth, neither do we. Throughout the history of the Friends Church there has been no group or type which has been excluded from fellowship. Indeed, we are only sinners saved by God's grace.

Rancho Cucamonga

Friends Church is affiliated with 35 other Friends Churches in California and Arizona. We are an evangelical church which sees an individual's relationship with Jesus Christ as being the center of the Christian message.

Marketing kept citrus industry ripe

By John H. Nicholson

In developing the story of Upland's long-time biggest industry that has recently vanished into housing and pavement, we have touched only lightly on marketing. Without a market that returned a profit to growers, continuation was an easy way of going broke.

Rough varieties of citrus were brought to California and Arizona by the Spanish and Portuguese missionaries in the late 1700s. With seeds from their homelands, they planted citrus and other crops around the missions. To prevent the crops from being livestock food, barricades of cactus were grown, to keep hungry critters away. Mission Indians loved the luscious fruit.

Noting mission successes, settlers decided citrus would be a good California crop, and grove acreage increased. While groves were few, and population was increasing, crops could be sold in nearby markets. Then, as now, a good thing can soon become overdone, and before long, surpluses of fruit were grown.

When the railroads to Southern California were built, the means of handling surpluses seemed at hand. But with the numerous buyers and shippers acting very independently, chaos was common.

A number of said buyers might hear of a profitable sale of fruit in, let's say, St. Louis. So, many carloads of fruit were sent there. Most all selling in eastern markets was by auction, at the wholesale level. When too much fruit arrived in an area, prices dropped, drastically.

Some fruit was held in cars on sidings, in hope the glut would ease, but such fruit often decayed before unloading. Refrigerated rail cars were yet to be developed. The helter-skelter sales methods put little cash into pockets other than those of the auction and commission grabbing folks at the markets.

Finally, a small group of growers in Riverside, followed by one in Claremont, banded together to improve the situation. They formed what they called Fruit Growers' Associations. They began selling fruit, in rail cars, at the packing house door. Buyers assumed all of the later risks. Profits improved, and other growers took note.

In 1893, a group of 60 growers formed the Southern California Fruit Exchange, to hopefully reap the benefits of organization. The road was rocky for more than a decade, as independents bucked organization. But, organization slowly forged ahead, with better profits to growers.

In 1905, the California Fruit Growers' Exchange was incorporated. It's cooperative principals, with improvements, are still in effect today. It adopted the Sunkist trademark for its finest fruit. In 1952, the name was changed to Sunkist Growers, Inc. It has become one of the world's larger farmer's marketing cooperatives. While a probable majority of California and Arizona growers are members of Sunkist, there are several, probably smaller, organizations still in competition.

To become a member of Sunkist, a grower must sign a simple form, agreeing to let a local Sunkist packing association handle and market his fruit for at least one year. He thus becomes a one man, one vote, part owner of the local association, and of Sunkist Growers, Inc. The entire organization is owned by its grower-members. Growers are represented by elected directors at the local, district, and central levels. The central headquarters of Sunkist Growers, Inc. is in Sherman Oaks.

The general aim of the organization is to return the most money possible to its members for their fruit. And by the use of the most modern sales and communications techniques, it seems to do just that. Both my dad and I were grower-members here in Upland for a number of years and we felt quite

Halloween SPECIALS

OCTOBER 31st

Safety a priority for trick or treaters

Halloween is one of the oldest and most traditional of all community-wide celebrations. Within the last few years, however, neighborhoods have experienced fewer and fewer "trick or treaters."

Although the National Safety Council admits there is reason for caution, the group is working to help keep children safe so they can dress up as their favorite monster or live out their childhood fantasy.

If a child wants to go trick or treating there are certain precautions a parent can take to make sure Halloween stays safe and enjoyable, said Sharon Gamache, home safety specialist of the National Safety Council.

"An obvious area of concern is the treats that a child receives," Gamache said. "Parents should examine treats before a child eats them. Look for anything suspicious, such as a broken seal or a wrapper that is loose. If you have any reason to believe that an item has been tampered with, don't allow your child to have the candy."

"If your child receives a piece of fruit for a treat, wash and slice it into small pieces and check for inedible additions. It's also a good idea to give children a meal or snack before they trick or treat. They'll be less likely to eat treats if they have had something to fill their stomachs."

One way to prevent children from eating candy before it has been inspected is to accompany them on their Halloween visits, she said.

"Young children should be supervised by an adult," she said. "An adult can keep track of the houses children visit and the treats they receive. An adult can also guide children in crossing streets and make sure that youngsters don't stray too far from the immediate neighborhood."

"Older children usually prefer to travel with friends, but parents should discuss certain safety rules with them before the children leave."

"To be on the safe side," Gamache said, "small children should trick or treat while it is still light outside. Some other Halloween activity such as having a costume party, visiting a haunted house, or renting a home movie can be held during the evening."

"If you live in a rural community or in an area that is not well-lighted and you allow your older children to trick or treat during the evening, have them carry flashlights and wear light-colored outfits or use reflective tape on the costumes. Children who follow this advice will see better, but more importantly, they will become more visible to motorists."

Another concern on Halloween is the costume that a child wears. "Children should be able to see properly without any visual obstructions," she said. "A painted face and a hat is worn properly will not obstruct a child's vision. If you choose to allow your child to wear a mask, make sure the eye holes are large enough for a child to see clearly. Enlarge the holes if they are too small. This will help prevent falls on stairs and it will allow children to see where they're going."

Children should also wear costumes that are made of flame resistant materials whenever possible. Comfortable, well-fitted shoes are strongly recommended. "It's not smart," Gamache said, "to allow a girl who dresses like a fairy princess to wear mother's high heels."

The accessories to a costume should also be given careful consideration. Sharp objects such as knives or swords should not be allowed.

The trick is keeping children safe

A night of ghosts, goblins and trick or treat for all children. Remember how much fun it was?

Unfortunately, every year the fire department responds to calls that involve ugly burns on small children whose Halloween ended in pain and sorrow.

The Foothill Fire District offers the following safety hints:

- All costumes bought in stores are required to be made from a flame retardant material. Look for the state fire marshal's seal of approval before you buy a costume for your "goblin."

- Look for costumes with reflective material that show brightly in headlights of cars.

- Don't allow children to carry pumpkins with candles — avoid any open flame. Maybe a flashlight will do the job.

- Masks should be of a type that provides good visibility.

- Small children should always be accompanied by an adult. Warn them to walk, not run, even though they are excited.

- Beware of makeshift "spook houses" in neighborhood garages. Too often they are loaded with combustibles and use open flame, such as candles, for effect. These operations are meant to be fun, but are illegal and dangerous.

- Check all treats before allowing children to eat them.

- If you have a party, be sure decorations used are flame resistive. Bed sheets and like materials can be treated with a flame retardant material.

Trick or treat requires safe precautions

Members of the Rancho Cucamonga Sheriff's Substation urge parents to take precautions for their children's safety during "trick or treat" time this Halloween.

"Every year, many children suffer from accidents, fires, falls, cuts and poison," according to a sheriff's spokesman. "Because of this, it is important for parents to ensure a safe and enjoyable evening for all the children."

According to department suggestions, children should wear light or reflective clothing; costumes should be fireproof and short enough to prevent tripping. Other suggestions include:

- Masks, if worn, should have large holes

Club focus

There's a certain magic about this group

By Terri Tirella

MAGIC is growing...well, like magic. Magic Arts Guild In Cucamonga, also known as the Bear Gulch Mystics, is one of the fastest growing magic clubs in the region.

"A lot of magic clubs meet and get overly organized — ours is like a round table: You feel a part of a large family," Jack Freedman, club president, said.

The club was formed five years ago as the Bear Gulch Mystics to promote the artistry of magic and communication between people who do magic or are interested in it.

Membership ranges from full-time professional magicians to 10-year-old children who are interested in magic. There are no skill-level requirements.

"We have about 80 members. If somebody joins, their whole family are members," Freedman said.

Two of the club's most recognized members are Harry Blackstone and his wife, Gay. The husband/wife team will celebrate its ninth wedding anniversary as the pair perform on a television special hosted by Dick Clark Monday.

The Blackstones are among many noted magicians who have lectured at MAGIC meetings, held the fourth Tuesday of the month, 8 p.m., at Rancho Cucamonga's Neighborhood Center, 9791 Arrow Highway.

"We seem to have some real magic going for us. We have members who attend our meetings who live in Long Beach, Buena Park, Los Angeles, and Redlands. It's also a club of presidents; presidents of other magic clubs are members of our club," he said. MAGIC meetings generally have high attendance, he noted.

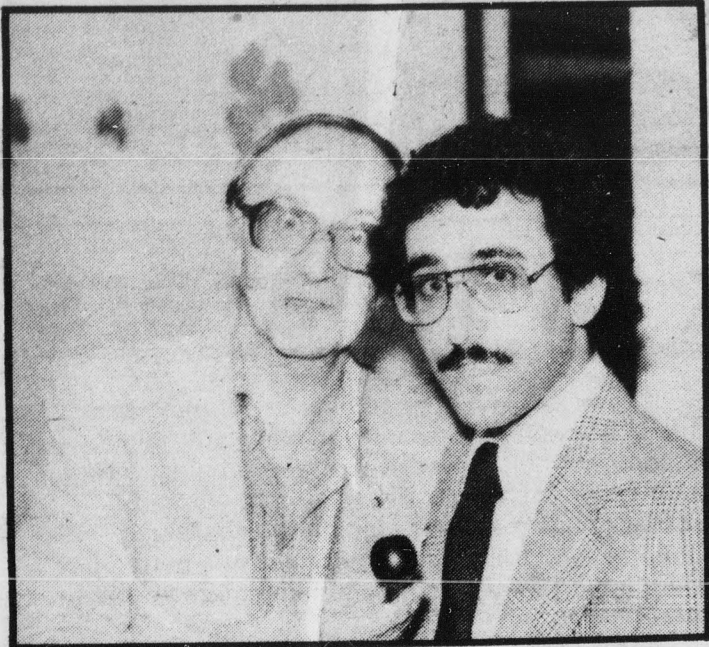

"We've been told by professionals that they get more enjoyment lecturing to to this group than to any others," he continued.

"We tried to get into Upland to meet, but they didn't want us. (Rancho) Cucamonga wanted the club to meet here and gave us the biggest room in the center," Freedman said.

The club initially met at the Magic Lamp. When new management took over, the group left and activities slowed to a standstill, according to Freedman.

"The Sutherlands helped reorganize the club and we moved to the Magic Toy Box in Colton, until we outgrew it," he said.

cut out for eyes, nose and mouth and should be removed when crossing streets.

• Young children should be accompanied by an adult or an older, responsible child.

• Parents should help plan a child's trick or treat ahead of time, choosing well-lit streets.

• Children should be reminded to cross only at corners and never between parked cars or at mid-block. If there is no sidewalk, children should walk facing traffic.

• Allow children to trick or treat while it is still daylight. If they go out after dark, give them a good working flashlight, sheriff deputies said.

Law enforcement officials advise parents to make a thorough inspection of all the "goodies" their children collected. If parents have any doubt about about the purity of anything given their child, or if they find treats with anything other than the proper contents, isolate them immediately.

Contact the Sheriff's Station of these treats with improper or dangerous items inside. This applies to all questionable items, even if you don't remember where the child received the treats. Halloween tips for families who will be passing candy to ghosts and goblins include:

• Keep your lights on so children can see where they are going.

• Remove all obstacles from the steps, sidewalks, lawn and driveways so children will not fall.

• If you intend to make treats, put name and address on the items.

While parents planned "Big Ideas," Tiger Cubs, from Cub Scout Park 641 visited McDonald's restaurant in Rancho Cucamonga.

"Big Ideas" are activities planned for second-graders in the newly formed organization by their parents. "Tiger Cubs is a family-oriented program. Our motto is "Search, Discover and Share," Maggie Plunkett, Tiger Cubs coordinator, said.

According to Plunkett, the story of Cub Scouting revolves around Jungle Book tales and is where Tiger Cubs got their name.

"One of the goals of Tiger Cubs is to provide an introduction to Scouting, for both boys and adults. Another goal is to offer each boy all kinds of new experiences and fun," she said.

"Tiger Cubs will provide insight into the ideals of the Boy Scouts — personal fitness, reverence for God, love of country and caring for others," Plunkett said. After a year of activity with their group, the Tiger Cubs will be eligible for graduation into Cub Scouting.

For more information about Tiger Cubs or other scouting groups call the Boy Scout Service Center in Claremont, 626-3551.

Travel book a wish list of adventures

Parting with $9.95 for what is basically a catalog may seem outlandish — but if your interests include real or armchair exploration of some of the Earth's most unique corners, outdoor-oriented treks, adventure travel and/or superb photography, then you'll spend that amount on the 1984 Mountain Travel Book of Treks, Outings and Expeditions.

"Our emphasis has always been on genuine exploration of some unique feature of our global geography, from a modest outing in the pastoral villages of Piemonte in the Italian foothills, to an arduous but spectacular 30-day trekking expedition in the Karakorum Range of northern Pakistan."

Those are the words of Leo Le Bon, president and one of the founders of the 16-year-old Mountain Travel of Albany near San Francisco. And he aptly describes the handsome publication as a "dream" or "wish" book. In all, 241 adventures with detailed itineraries, 500 color photos and 55 maps are featured.

These journeys, which may be booked through your travel agent, are also listed in separate regional catalogs for Africa, Asia, Europe, Peru and Alaska available from Mountain Travel at $2 each postpaid. The complete 140-page Book of Treks, Outings and Expeditions is $9.95 postpaid (add 6 percent sales tax). Contact Mountain Travel, 1398 Solano Ave., Albany, Calif. 94706.

Ten-day tours to the top Austrian ski resorts are being offered by Scandinavian Airlines at prices beginning as low as $935, including airfare from Los Angeles, and at equally reasonable rates from other SAS gateways.

The 1983-84 "Ski the Olympic Slopes" program, one of the most popular of the winter travel packages, features Innsbruck, Kitzbuhel, Mayrhofen and Zell Am Ziller and includes, as well as round-trip transportation, hotel accommodations for nine nights (two in Copenhagen, seven in Austria), continental breakfasts, free ski buses and other extras.

Sixteen departures have been scheduled beginning Jan. 6 through March 30. Details from travel agents or SAS tour desk.

Sun Line Cruises, pioneers of unusual cruise itineraries, this winter will again offer two-week voyages from San Juan, Puerto Rico, through the Leeward and Windward islands and up Venezuela's Orinoco River aboard the Stella Oceanis.

All passengers on each of the six departures during the Dec. 23 to March 2 season will receive a free, second vacation valued to $1,000 at a choice of 12 prestigious Marriott resorts. The $1,000 "Breakaway

Full of Life show

The Pomona Valley/West End Chapter of the Right to Life League will present Full of Life, a fashion show-luncheon on Nov. 5 at Buffums' Vejar Room, Pomona Mall.

The festivities begin at 11:30 a.m. with a social hour until noon, at which time the lunch will be served. Fashions by Marlene's of Redlands will follow with a look at some of the new fall fashions.

Funds received from the fashion show will give a boost to the chapter's Pregnancy Counseling Center, located at 121 E. F St., Ontario.

Tickets for the fashion show are $12.50 a person and are tax-deductible. To make reservations, call 629-5763 or 9861-5997 before Nov. 1.

Bonus" features up to seven nights accommodations to be taken anytime during 1984, subject to space availability, at participating resorts.

Additional information is available from travel agents or Sun Line Cruises, 1 Rockefeller Plaza, New York, N.Y. 10010, toll-free phone 1-800-468-6400.

British Airways has slashed the price of its fall-winter London hotel and vacation prices by as much as 17 percent. The "Dollar Saver Holidays in London" program, exclusive for BA passengers, ranges from a single-night hotel package to a four-day "City Saver" or seven-day "Showtime" tour.

For as little as $10 a night per person, based on double occupancy, you can book a room with a private bath at the centrally located Tavistock

Hotel. One year ago the price was $12. Continental breakfast, service charges and value added tax are included in the low price. Other categories of hotels available include the Metropole for $19 a night per person, the Kensington Hilton for $22, the Hyatt Carlton Tower for $47 and the Churchill for $62.

The "Dollar Saver" programs may be combined with any British Airways' promotional airfare available from 11 U.S. gateway cities. The tours are available between Nov. 1 and March 31.

Brochures, reservations or flight information may be obtained from any travel agent, British Airways sales office or by calling the airline's toll-free number, 1-800-252-0045.

Fine arts home tour, auction slated

The 1983 benefit of the Fine Arts Foundation of Scripps College, "The Claremont College Collage," will be held Oct. 30, featuring a tour of some of the finest residential buildings of the Claremont Colleges.

Also included will be a gala gathering on the Scripps College campus and a silent auction of the works of well-known contemporary American ceramists.

The house tour will include the homes of: Dr. Kenneth Baker, president of Harvey Mudd College; Dr. John Chandler of Scripps College; Dr. Frank Ellsworth of Pitzer College; the new Marian Miner Cook Athenaeum of Claremont McKenna College; and the Padelford House of Scripps College.

The Baker house, a gift of Mr. and Mrs. Leroy Garrett, was completed in 1959 as the residence of Dr. and Mrs. Joseph Platt. Designed by architect Henry Eggers, it serves both private and public functions.

The Padelford House, now owned by Scripps College, was built in the 1920s. This California Spanish stucco house was the residence of Louise Padelford from the early 1960s until her death in 1979. She included an additional 20-by-30-foot living room, designed by Millard Sheets, and a Mediterranean-style swimming pool. Padelford, who was closely associated with Scripps College, often used her home for both public and private college functions.

The construction of the Marian Miner Cook Athenaeum of CMC was begun in June 1972 and completed in September 1983 by the architectural firm of Quincy Jones and Associates. Funded and endowed by parents, trustees and friends of the college, it has been in continuous use for student programs, functions and general enrichment.

The Chandler house, the residence of Scripps College presidents, was completed in 1939 as the home of the first Scripps president, Ernest Jaqua and his family. The two-story classical Mediterranean home, donated to Scripps by Mr. and Mrs. Wadleigh, is noted for its lawns and gardens.

During the afternoon festivities in the courtyard of Lang Gallery on the Scripps campus, the ceramists to be featured include Peter Voulkos, who revolutionized the use of clay as a medium; Paul Soldner and Jerry Rothman, both of the Voulkos group at the Otis Art Institute of Chicago; Laura Andreson, a California teacher for many years; Beatrice Wood; Jun Kaneko, MacClain, Jim Rombreg, David Shaner; and others.

The schedule for the day is house tour from

Patty O'Shay's caters to women who need styles in larger sizes

Patty O'Shay's, a store offering clothing for large women, celebrated its grand opening last weekend.

Fashions found in Patty O'Shay's include designs by Chez, Samatha O and Mac Lane along with others.

"This is a new adventure for me," Thomson said. She has been in show business for 16 years.

Her work keeps residents playing

have that many facilities here."

With only a handful of playing fields in the city and two recreation facilities, Matcham said "our hands are tied. We can only do so much."

For example, men's and co-ed softball leagues can only play during the fall and winter, as opposed to year-round programs that other cities boast. From July to January, the adult leagues have full reign over the fields, while the youth leagues take over from February to July.

"It is too bad because this city loves (adult) co-ed (softball)," she said. "But we have been turning away teams. Money is tight right now for new parks, but we have plans and funding down the road."

Many of the services provided are open to people who do not even live in the city, but the field allocations are only open to Rancho Cucamonga residents.

Because of the limited facilities, plans to add on to Neighborhood Center and the Heritage Park project (which was recently reviewed by the planning commission) excite Matcham.

"They will be great additions to the city," she said with a smile.

The responsibility of making sure groups use the facilities allocated falls squarely on Matcham's shoulders. "I have to make sure that aspect runs smoothly."

"I'm openly committed to working with school principals to handle problems as they arise," she said.

Her job "keeps you busy, so that's good. It's enjoyable — it has its ups and downs — but it's enjoyable."

"It's a challenge," she said. "It's always growing and changing." □

Forum called for political candidates

Rancho Cucamonga-area political candidates are scheduled to appear at a forum, Nov. 1 from 7 p.m. to 10 p.m. in the city's community center at Lions Park.

The forum will give the public a chance to hear candidates from Central School District, Chaffey Joint Union High School District, Chaffey College, Cucamonga School District, Cucamonga County Water District, Etiwanda School District and the Foothill Fire Protection District.

Each candidate will speak for five minutes.

The forum is being sponsored by the Soroptomist International of Ontario. Lions Park Community Center is located at 9161 Base Line Road.

Getting ready for

Students at Floyd Stork Elementary learn the proper way to safely evacuate a bus in case of emergency. A total of 750 students along with 11 school buses lined the playground last week as part of Earthquake Preparedness month. (Middle photo) School Mechanic, Alan 'Duke' Campbell takes time out to watch the students. A bus load of kids (far right) wait for instructions to 'duck and cover.'

or the "BIG ONE"

Add another "R" to the list of subjects in the Alta Loma School District. These days it's reading, 'riting, 'rithmetic and 'rthquakes.

Teachers, staff, administrators, students and parents are learning to deal with what experts say is inevitable — a major Southern California earthquake within the next 30 years.

In fact, October has been designated "Earthquake Preparedness Month" in the district. Rancho Cucamonga Mayor Jon Mikels followed Alta Loma's cue by declaring "Earthquake Education Awareness Month" in the city.

Though the Coalinga quake last May focused statewide attention on getting ready for "The Big One," Alta Loma's program was not hurriedly thrown together on shaky ground. Two years of study under the direction of Millie Strain, director of curriculum/instruction, went into the project.

The result, as designed by a district earthquake committee, was a comprehensive guidebook outlining safety tips students and staff should follow.

For the last two years, representatives from the district have been attending meetings held by the Southern California Earthquake Preparedness Project, a group aimed at creating strategies against disasters. Information from SCEPP and the county went into the guidebook.

Also, students are learning the cause of earthquakes through classroom study about shifting continental plates. There are also school bus and playground safety drills being performed at the schools this month.

"We want the children so used to earthquake drills that it will be an automatic reaction when the ground shakes to take cover," Strain said. "There will still be panic, but we hope it will reduce panic and let them know what to do."

Children would be left at their school until parents arrive, with most taken to grassy schoolyards where buildings and poles are not likely to fall.

Joan Achuff, the district's director of transportation, has implemented a program for school bus evacuation which, she says, "I hope we'll never have to use."

With buses lined in a row on the playgrounds, 750 children were involved in a recent training exercise with the vehicles. Evacuation drills, which are required once a year in the state, have been performed in the district for five years, but this was the first time all children in a school did the exercise at once. In the past, the drill was performed by individual classes.

Inside the bus, children were told to "duck and cover" by squatting down with hands over heads. Instructions were also given on where to find the radio and fire extinguisher inside the bus and how to operate exits.

Classes, assigned to certain buses, file out the doors as individual student leaders sit near emergency exits to help other children out of the bus.

The children jump onto mats during the drills and walk in a single line away from the bus. The key to the exercise is not to panic, Achuff said.

While practicing the bus evacuation drill at Stork Elementary School recently, one driver said she had a problem with one boy "who didn't want to touch the girls" while helping the children out of the bus.

But children are not the only ones involved in earthquake awareness training. From the superintendent to the school janitor, everyone in the district is being tremor-trained.

First aid classes are offered throughout the district in conjunction with the Red Cross. Teachers, aides and staff members who go through the training receive certificates.

Home earthquake safety material has been drawn up for parents as well, Strain said.

"Hopefully, the families will sit down and plan things out like where to go to shut off the gas and escape exits," Strain said.

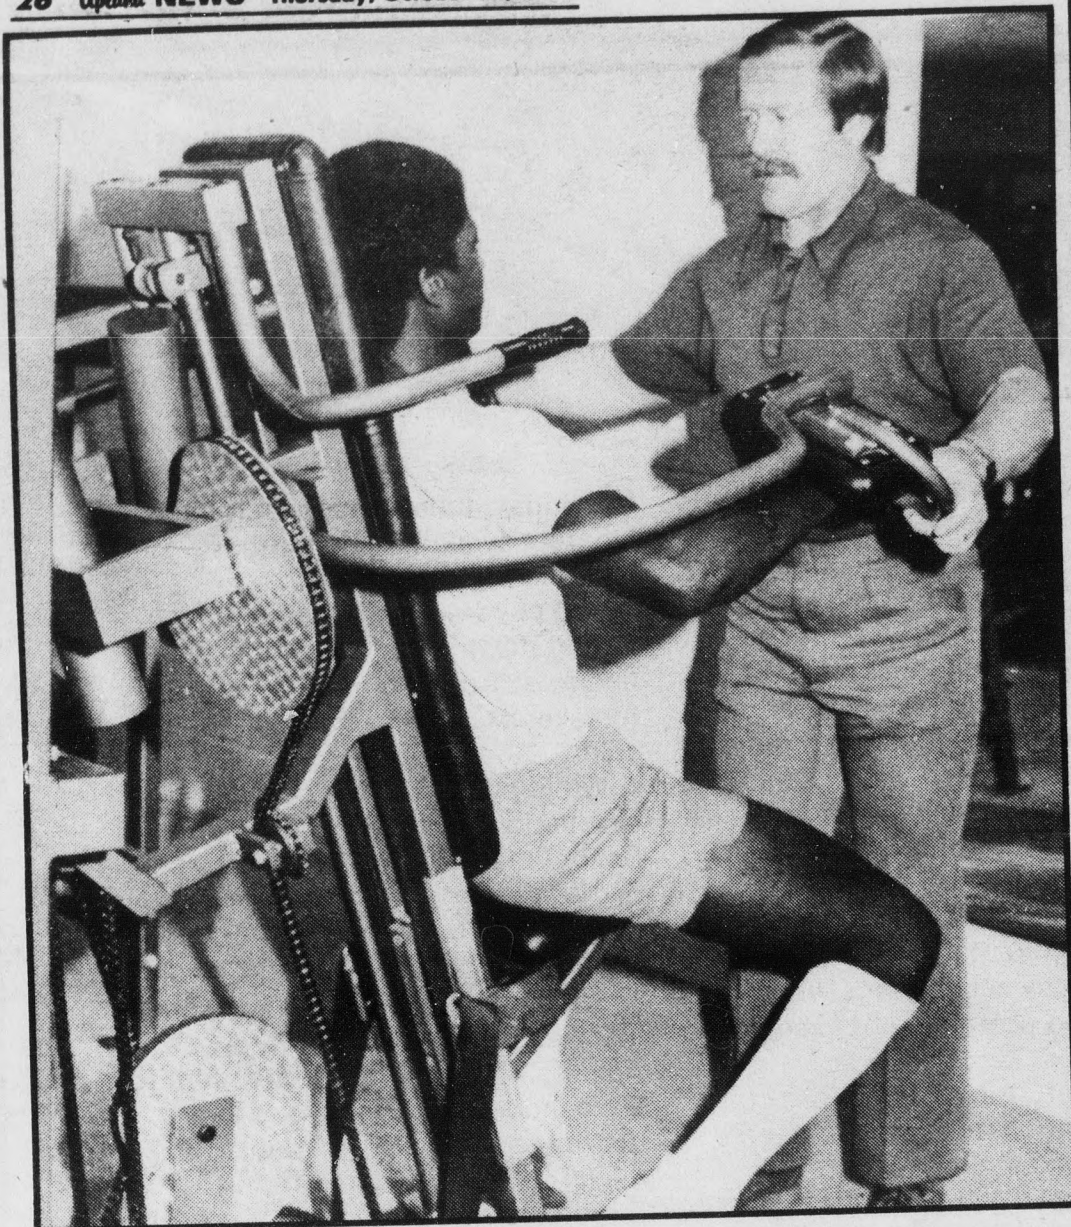

Some might think all the talk about devastation would frighten the children, but Strain said the more they know about earthquakes, the less afraid the children will be.

Some of the material and training can be applied to other disasters (such as fires), but Strain said there is a difference with earthquakes.

Ferragamo gives gift of fitness

LeRoy Boys' Home youngsters are becoming more physically fit these days because of the generosity of Los Angeles Rams quarterback Vince Ferragamo.

Ferragamo appeared at the September grand opening of Gold's Gym in the Alpha Beta Shopping Center at Foothill and San Antonio in Upland. Rather than accept a fee for his guest appearance, Ferragamo asked Gold's Gym owner Jack Simpson to use the money to provide 12, one-year memberships for needy youths.

Simpson decided to donate the memberships to LeRoys, a La Verne based, non-profit, non-sectarian, state-licensed children's agency providing residential care and treatment for boys age 8 to 18.

"Since ideally many of our youngsters remain at the Home for

'Decision' offers first class drama

DECISION: by Allen Drury; Doubleday; 486 pages; $17.95. The author of "Advise and Consent" takes up in this book the case of Earle Holgren, veteran of the violent U.S. protest movement in the late 1960s. Holgren, a fanatical terrorist, sees new hope for his movement in the swift burgeoning of crime in the 1980s. So he kills in behalf of social protest — this time killing his victim on TV. Holgren is caught and tried — and the case eventually winds its way to the U.S. Supreme Court, which bobs, weaves and tries to duck. Ex-court reporter Drury's book is drenched with realism and first-class drama.

THE TROUBLED CRUSADE - AMERICAN EDUCATION 1945-1980: by Diane Ravitch; Basic Books; 384 pages; $19.95. Why are the nation's schools in a mess, graduating students who can't read, write or do simple math? Ravitch gives the reasons why in a very readable analysis that traces the causes decade by decade since World War II ended. One major problem, she finds, has been the steady encroachment of the federal government into an educational system once free of bureaucratic interference. The government grants — and then rules. If the education of your children concerns you, read this.

pages; $24.95. Excellent book for coastal dwellers — or bird lovers who vacation there. Birds are described in both text and drawing, all in color. All areas of the world are covered — from the Indian Ocean to the North Atlantic. There is a total of 312 species, an indication of the vast number of birds that color the world's coasts. THE SMART

INVESTOR'S GUIDE TO REAL ESTATE: by Robert Bruss; Crown; 270 pages; $13.95. One reason for the recent plunge into real estate by so many people is that tax law changes make it possible now to depreciate a rental property over 15 years instead of 20 years. This jacks up considerably the owner's tax savings (property purchased prior to the law change is not affected). Bruss covers this angle and many others in the fascinating business of making money by buying and selling real estate — including leverage, the magic tool whereby you can control a large amount of valuable real estate with relatively little cash investment.

THE 35mm PHOTOGRAPHER'S

All you need to know about taking photos with the 35mm camera: travel shots, marine photography, aerial, nudes, beauty, animals, sports, special effects.

Armed with new pitch, Pastore looks forward

By Tom Vivian

In the not so distant past, the Cincinnati Reds were considered one of major league baseball's premier organizations.

The year was 1979 and Cincinnati had won its tenth divisional title, capping a decade of virtual dominance of the National League West by the Reds and Dodgers.

It was that year in which an outstanding spring training performance earned Frank Pastore a spot on the big team's roster. A pitcher in the Reds' system since 1975, Pastore was given the opportunity to play with a truly great team.

The thrill, however, was to be short-lived.

Although they co-dominated the National League West with the Dodgers throughout the '70s, the Reds have had more than their share of problems in the current decade.

After winning its last division championship, Cincinnati finished third in 1980, failed to qualify for the playoffs in the strike-altered '81 campaign and stumbled all the way to sixth last season.

In 1983, the Reds posted just 74 wins en route to a last-place finish.

Despite the dismal record, Pastore believes the team has made progress toward righting its downward slide.

"I'm very excited about the whole thing (the team's prospects for '84)," the Upland resident said.

Injuries have plagued his major league career, but he was still the club's top hurler in 1980 with a 13-7 record.

Due to a new stretching method and an injury-free 1983 season, Pastore is eagerly awaiting next season. Another reason for optimism is his recent mastering of the knuckleball.

"I'd always thrown it (the knuckler) to kill time," said the 26-year-old right-hander.

Working with pitching coach Bill Fischer, Pastore gained confidence in the unorthodox pitch, and decided to use it during the latter stages of the season.

The results were immediate. He registered a 4-0 shutout of the St. Louis Cardinals, his best performance of the season.

In his last outing of the campaign, he closed out with a 6-4 decision over the Houston Astros.

The win gave him a 9-12 record for the season and 40-48 major league career mark.

As Pastore tells it, he had little to lose by developing the new pitch.

"For a while there, I was getting shellacked," said Pastore, whose 4.88 ERA in 1983 exceeded the 3.81 mark he had compiled in four-plus seasons previously. He completed four of 29 starts.

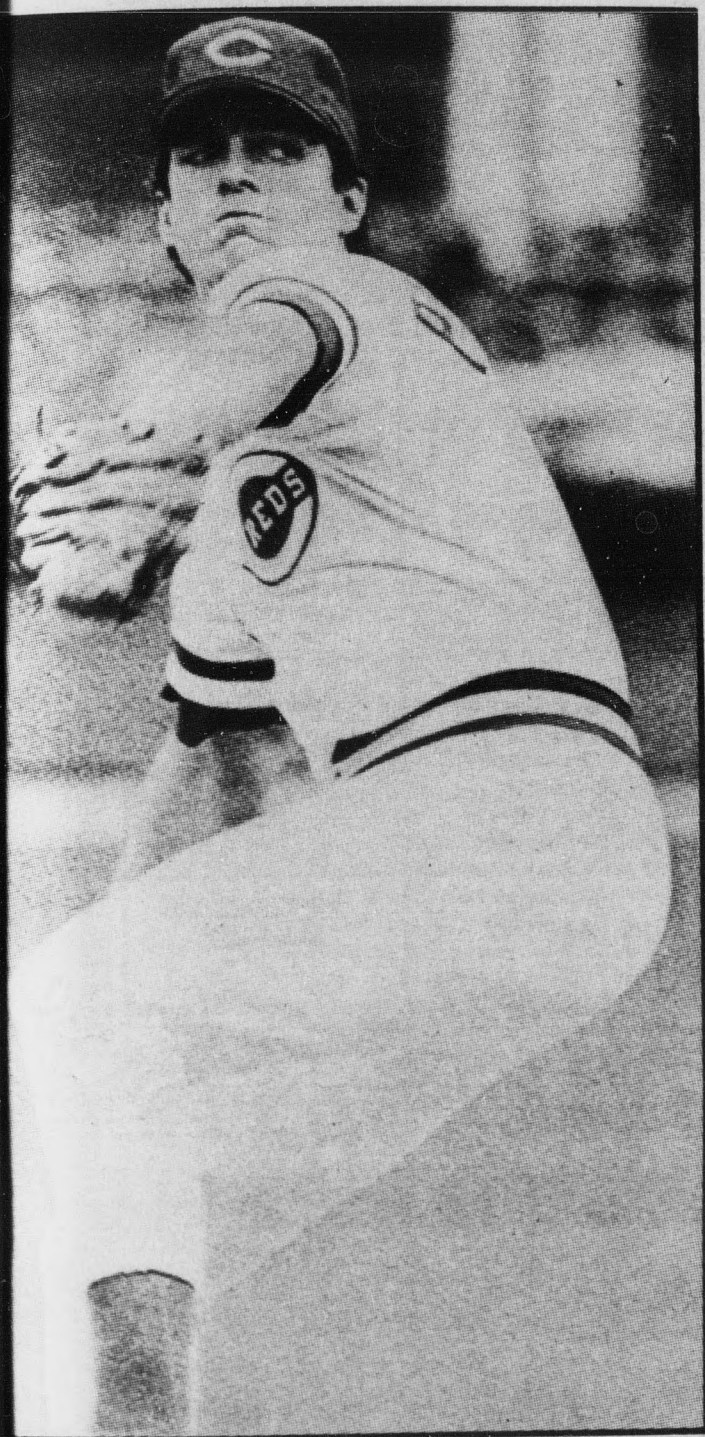

On more positive notes, the 6-foot-3, 205-pounder showed good control, allowing just 64 walks in 184 1/3 innings. He fanned 93 batters.

Along with his individual progress, his confidence has also been bolstered by what he feels are positive moves in the Reds' front office.

Early in the season, club president and chief executive officer Dick Wagner was fired. Wagner will go down in baseball history as the man whose tight fiscal policies hastened the demise of the once powerful club.

His refusal to meet contract demands of stars such as Pete Rose, Tony Perez, and Joe Morgan, along with his equally adamant

Hope beset by physical problems in NY Marathon

For New Zealand's Rod Dixon, last Sunday's New York Marathon was a harbinger of a surely rosy future in long distance running. Dixon, in only his second marathon, traversed the course in 2:08.59, good enough for first place in the event's 14th staging.

For Joel Hope, the race was supposed to be a stepping-stone.

However, the only trouble with stepping-stones is that they allow room for two-way trips.

Hope, rated as America's 32nd best marathoner going into the race, fell prey to physical problems and finished the New York course in 2:21.06, placing him 73rd overall.

"I just had a poor race," Hope said from his home this week. "Things happened that I couldn't control, and so I couldn't keep up." Sunday's time was five minutes slower than his personal best of 2:16.11 set last April in Boston, where he placed 33rd.

Lynn Buehler, Hope's running coach, said that although Sunday's finish was disappointing, it should not prove to be a major setback in Hope's marathon career.

"It was a learning experience," the Chaffey College track and cross country coach said. He added that Hope now needs to pay attention to the intricacies of training, and develop mental intensity.

"He's physically ready (to win marathons)," Buehler said. "He just needs to increase his intensity."

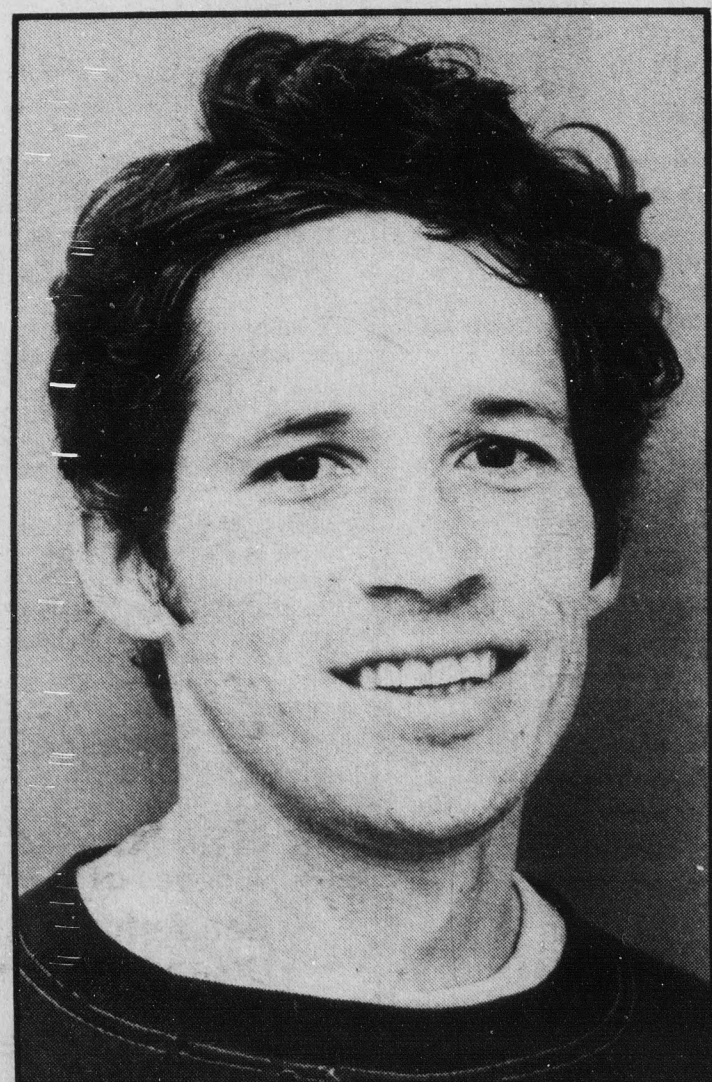

Hope, who still runs track at Chaffey, said that despite his disappointment, he will begin training immediately for another race in February.

"It just made me hungrier," he said of the N.Y.C. finish. "I've got to increase the intensity of my training."

Hope also said that Sunday's time will not be held against him when the Olympic Marathon trials are held this April in Buffalo, N.Y.

"My time for Boston will still be used as my qualifying time," Hope said.

To be invited to the trials, a runner needs to hold a spot in the sport's top 50 places.

Joel Hope: 73rd in New York Marathon.

Upland keeps playoff spot in sight

By Charles Bentley

Three weeks ago, Upland High School's football team was still searching for its first win for 1983. Today the Highlanders find themselves in the thick of the hunt for a CIF Eastern Conference playoff berth.

In just three weeks, coach Leo Guest's club has gone from winless to winners status, thanks to two crucial Baseline League wins and a tie. And while the Highlanders still need help from outside forces to garner a post-season bid, that's a lot better than things looked three games back.

After losing fourth straight to open the season, it looked as if Upland's chances of winning one would be slim at best.

Just ahead was a home battle with defending league and CIF Eastern Conference champ Damien. But instead of loss number five, Guest's club rallied to turn the Damien contest into a crucial turning point.

Scots still have shot at football playoffs

remaining, Upland quarterback Rory Davis connected on a 64-yard touchdown pass to Nick Skvarna to upset the Spartans 15-13.

"We played a fine game against Damien," said Guest. "We had a pretty good game plan going in and we carried it out. We put everything together just at the right time."

The following week the Scots tied with Don Lugo, 8-8, then last Friday night thrashed district rival Chaffey 44-0. In that win, Upland scored more points in four quarters than they had in the previous six games.

Against Chaffey, the Scots again followed coach Guest's game plan to the letter, shutting down the Tigers key offensive threats while using their own offensive quickness to outplay the Chaffey defense.

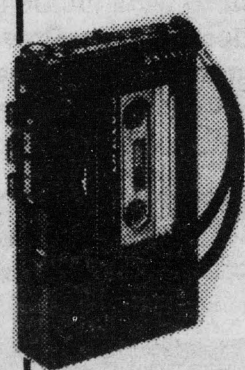

"Our offense has really come along the last three games, save for maybe one half in the Don Lugo game. Against Chaffey, we used our quickness on offense and just outplayed them," said Guest. "We controlled the line of scrimmage against Chaffey, something I didn't think was possible going in. They (the Tigers) are a very good football team."

This week's game should, according to Guest, be the key to the Scots post-season hopes. But in facing Claremont at Citrus College this Friday (7:30 p.m.), Upland meets one of the best defensive units in Southern California.

Norell selected UHS soccer boss

When the Upland High School soccer squad prepares for its winter season, there'll be a new face at the helm.

Pete Norell has been selected as the Scots' new soccer boss, replacing John Evans. There won't be much time to get ready for the 41-year-old Norell as the first practice is scheduled for Nov. 7.

Norell, an Upland resident since 1969, is no stranger to the soccer scene. He mostly recent coached two Upland Astros squads.

Former Upland standout Eric Skvarna and Cal State Fullerton teammate Pete Gonsalves will join Norell and Tom Lopez on the coaching staff. In addition, Norell plans to field three soccer squads this year.

"It'll be our goal to return to the playoffs," Norell said, adding he'll have several returning and senior players.

"I'm a fairly strong disciplinarian," said Norell, who also started a program designed to aid players in obtaining college scholarships. "I believe strongly that soccer is only fourth or fifth on the list of important things, especially for high school students."

Pastore looks ahead to new year with Reds

stance against acquiring free agents, was viewed by many as the beginning of the end.

Recently, however, purse strings were loosened with Mario Soto's inking of a million dollar pact. Pastore also feels the club will begin pursuing free agents.

Other changes included the release of manager Russ Nixon at season's end and the naming of ex-Montreal coach Vern Rapp as his replacement.

Pastore was also a leader in an arbitration ruling against the club, which granted the players the right to wear shoes displaying trademark trim. Previously, management had mandated that all shoes worn by Reds' players were to be polished completely black, thus limiting the player's chances to sign lucrative shoe endorsement contracts.

"It's good to see management coming into the 20th century," he said.

In his estimation, the team is in dire need of power hitters. "We need (more) home runs and runs batted in."

Pastore's five-year career in the majors has already surpassed the league average of slightly more than four years, and he plans to prolong it as long as possible.

"I'll play as long as I possibly can," he said.

Pastore attended Damien High School and, following a senior season which saw him named all-CIF, signed with the Reds.

There's a certain magic about this group

Notable performers the club has hosted include Terry Seabrooke, who won "Visiting Magician of the Year" from the Magic Castle in Hollywood. "Terry, who is known for his comedy as well as magic, only makes his trek to the United States from his home in England about four times a year," Freedman said.

"He is a regular on English television and when he plays the 'palace', he means Buckingham. He was part of the British tour of 'Wonder Woman' with Lynda Carter, which ended with a season at the London Palladium. His credits span the globe: He even entertained the Royal Troops in the Falkland Islands," Freedman said.

The visiting magicians lecture about magic and sometimes demonstrate their skills. Other club meetings revolve around members sharing or trying out their acts in front of other club members.

Members may do a routine or a trick, but whether they explain it is their choice. Some will try out a new act and ask for opinions.

Anyone wishing information about MAGIC, also known as the Bear Gulch Mystics, can call 981-1369 or 981-1210.

fortunate in the returns we received for what we grew.

When a growers' entire crop is picked and arrives at a packing house, there is always some fruit that is not top quality. It may have scars by rubbing against a tree limb, may be too small or too large, may be with a rough peel appearance, but is not of a good enough quality for shipping or marketing.

Such fruit was picked off of the grading belts in the packing houses, and in the early days was termed "culls." With no market, it was hauled to dumps, where it rotted away, while being enjoyed by a variety of rodents. It was a profitless mess.

The now Sunkist folks pondered the problem, and came up with some good uses of that fruit, as "by-products." More about that next week. □

West End United Way.

Newcombe at Industry Hills

Don Newcombe, former star pitcher with the LA Dodgers, will be the featured speaker Nov. 8 at the 6:30 dinner meeting at Industry Hills and Sheraton Resort.

Disneyland fall season: Less hours, attendance

The fall season at Disneyland means lighter attendance, mild temperatures and a variety of special events.

Park hours are generally 10 a.m. to 6 p.m. during the week, with varying longer hours on weekends and holidays. Disneyland is now closed on Mondays and Tuesdays (except for holiday periods).

Continuing on Saturdays and Sundays is the Flights of Fantasy Parade, a procession commemorating the 60th anniversary of Walt Disney Productions and the opening of the new Fantasyland.

Flights of Fantasy features a cast of more than 150 performers in scenes inspired by Disney animated classics such as "Fantasia," "Alice in Wonderland," "Snow White and the Seven Dwarfs," "Cinderella" and "Sleeping Beauty."

The new Fantasyland, which opened in May, features new, more elaborate versions of "Snow White's Scary Adventures," "Peter Pan's Flight" and "Mr. Toad's Wild Ride" as well as "Pinocchio's Daring Journey" — an addition to Fantasyland's fairytale village.

In celebration of Mickey Mouse's 55th birthday on Nov. 18, November will be designated Mickey's Month. Beginning Saturday and continuing for five consecutive weekends and Thanksgiving holidays, guests may enjoy breakfast and lunch birthday celebrations with Mickey Mouse at selected restaurants. Guests through age 11 will receive a commemorative birthday gift.

The Disneyland Christmas season will begin Dec. 17 and features a Christmas version of the Flights of Fantasy Parade, extended hours and decorations that will lend a yuletide atmosphere throughout the park.

Because the fall and winter are refurbishment periods for some of the Disneyland attractions, it is advisable to contact the park before setting a visiting date if there is a favorite adventure you don't want to miss. Scheduled for refurbishment this fall is "America the Beautiful" in Tomorrowland. "Alice in Wonderland," in Fantasyland, will remain closed until spring.

For information, call 999-4565 or (213) 626-8605, extension 4565.

The event is sponsored by the board of directors of the National Council on Alcoholism of East San Gabriel and Pomona Valleys, Inc.

Cost for the evening including a steak dinner is $20 per person. To reserve a place, make checks payable to NCA and mail to 955 N. Grand Ave., Covina, Cal. 91724. For information call (213) 331-5361.

Free blood pressure screening

The Claremont Red Cross will hold a free blood pressure screening clinic on Nov. 2, 10 a.m. to noon, at the Chapter House, 2065 N. Indian Hill Blvd.

Great American Smoke-Out

In order to help smokers quit during this year's Great American Smokeout, the American Cancer Society's Inland Empire Unit is offering a little incentive.

The incentive is the chance for one male and one female smoker to be "adopted" for an evening by two sports figures of the opposite sex.

During this year's great American Smokeout — the national campaign to get smokers to stop for 24 hours, this year on Nov. 17 — the cancer society has developed an "Adopt-A-Smoker" theme, in which non-smokers take smokers under their wings.

The Inland Empire Unit is also looking for smokers who wish to be adopted by two sports celebrities for an evening. To win the dinner all they have to do is pledge: "I agree not to smoke for 24 hours on Thursday, Nov. 17 and to keep from smoking I will even ———."

That's the catch. The Cancer Society is looking for creative, imaginative, innovative, even a little bit crazy novelty acts or performances which can be presented at the Harris Store in Central City Mall in San Bernardino on Wednesday, Nov. 16 at 6 p.m.

Ten finalists will be picked for the contest finals and the celebrities will choose the winners for the dinner.

Entry forms are available at Harris', Radio Shack, the American Cancer Society main office, 2060 Chicago, Suite A-17 and at all branches. Or entrants can write their own pledges on a piece of paper and send it to the above address, Deadline is Nov. 7.

For information on the contest or special stop smoking clinics, call 683-6415 or 824-2724.

Friday club discusses revolutionary ideas

The Friday Afternoon Club opened its 87th year with a luncheon meeting at the Upland home of Mrs. James Phelps.

Incoming officers are: Mrs. Michael Missakian, president; Mrs. James Connolly, vice president; and Mrs. William Dingle, secretary-treasurer.

The theme for this year's study is "Revolutions — The Human Condition."

The first program, "The Industrial Revolution

(1760-1840)" will be presented this Friday by Mrs. Patton Lewis.

It will be followed on Nov. 4 with "The Feminist Revolution" by Mrs. Joseph Tangeman and on Nov. 18 Mrs. Franklin Ulf will focus on the communication revolution with "The Printed Media."

The Friday Afternoon Club was founded in 1896 by a group of women who rode horseback to neighboring ranches for their meetings.

The members thoroughly research their topics after members of the program committee spend the summer choosing a theme and working out each program topic, Missakian said.

Those serving in this capacity this club year are Mrs. Edward Novell, chairman, with Phelps and Mrs. Francis Wass.

Alta Loma students ready for 'Big One'

"Other disasters give you a little warning," she said. "With a fire, you usually smell smoke first. But with a quake, when the ground shakes you have to react quickly. The Coalinga quake really woke us up. So did the (last) winter storms. What do you do with 35 kids in a classroom with no lights? That really made people aware."

The reaction from parents and staff to the earthquake program has been "very positive," according to Strain. In fact, she said surrounding districts have asked for help in creating their own plans.

"It's not a question of whether it happens — everyone knows it will — it's a matter of when. But everyone thinks it is not going to happen to them," Strain said. "... I think we are really ahead of other districts."

Strain said the district is also ahead of the city, which she said does not yet have an earthquake disaster plan.

"It's like we're sitting on a time bomb," she said. "... It'll be a matter of time before it comes. The better prepared we are, the better you can deal with it when it comes."

The district's earthquake preparedness program "is not just a one-month thing," Strain said. "This will continue indefinitely until 'The Big One' comes." □

Upland returns with honors in competition

Upland Drill Team took honors in its division, placing second with less than one point separating the group from winning Glendora.

Upland Tall Flags also took a second place behind Glendora.
